Fell* by Jenn Ashworth

In this eerie and atmospheric tale, Annette returns to the house in Morecambe Bay where she grew up in the 1960s to find it falling apart, undermined by the roots of two huge sycamores.

She is unaware that she has awoken the spirits of her parents, Jack and Nettie, who watch anxiously as she is overwhelmed by the state of the house. Can they forgive themselves and move on?

The Turn of the Screw* by Henry James

A young woman becomes governess for two oddly silent children at a forlorn estate. An estate haunted by a beckoning evil.

Half-seen figures who glare from dark towers; silent, foul phantoms who, night by night, come closer, ever closer. With growing horror, the helpless governess realises the fiendish creatures want the children, seeking to possess their minds and own their souls...

The Graveyard Book* by Neil Gaiman

When a baby escapes a murderer intent on killing the entire family, who would have thought it would find safety and security in the local graveyard?

Brought up by the resident ghosts, ghouls and spectres, Bod has an eccentric childhood learning about life from the dead. But for Bod there is also the danger of the murderer still looking for him – after all, he is the last remaining member of the family.

The Fiery Trial* by Eric Foner

This landmark work gives us a definitive account of Lincoln's lifelong engagement with the critical issue of his nation: slavery. A master historian, Eric Foner draws Lincoln and the broader history of the period into perfect balance.

We see Lincoln, a pragmatic politician grounded in principle, deftly navigating the dynamic politics of antislavery, secession, and civil war. Lincoln's greatness emerges from his capacity for moral and political growth.
